Memorandum for BBC Bus Workers

Subject: Sunday bus rider's minimum age and behavior policy

To limit the potential liability to Berean Baptist Church, children who ride the buses to Sunday school should be a minimum of five years old unless they are accompanied by a parent or guardian. The safety of all our children and guests must be priority and it is difficult to provide the necessary supervision for children under the age of five unless their parent or guardian is present with them.

Children who ride the buses to church are expected to behave appropriately in Sunday school and Power Hour services. Those children who are exceptionally disruptive may have to be suspended from their privilege of being picked up for church. Any child who is exceptionally disruptive will be given a warning and then suspended for two weeks. A second warning will result in a month long suspension and a third warning would result in a permanent suspension. The child's bus captain will be responsible to inform the child's parents of any behavior issues and subsequent suspensions.

Proclaiming Christ,

Steven Wilson
Executive Pastor
